Gina,

They can place a fence along the street side yard if they wish. I've copied the fence requirements if you'd like to pass them along to your customer. They will need a building permit and the fence cannot exceed 6 feet in height. This applies to the street side yard only. The fence must be on their property but has no setback as long as it doesn't get into the required front yard. Here are the requirements:

Fences.

All fences require a permit and shall comply with the building code.

Fences may be located along all front, side and rear yards and may be constructed on any common property line. However, no fence or hedge located in a required front yard shall exceed four feet in height unless it meets the minimum required front yard setback for the zoning district in which it is located.

In areas where the property faces two roadways or is located in any other area construed to be a corner lot, no opaque fence or hedge exceeding two feet in height shall be located in the line of sight.

No fence shall generally exceed six feet in height; however, fences may be approved by the building official of a maximum of eight feet in height if designed to withstand the current wind-load.

No fence shall be constructed or installed in such a manner as to interfere with drainage on the site.

f.

Any fence located adjacent to a public right-of-way or private road shall be placed with the finished side facing that right-of-way.

g.

A fence required for safety and protection of hazard by another public agency may not be subject to height limitations above. Approval to exceed maximum height standards may be given by the administrative official upon receipt of satisfactory evidence of the need to exceed height standards.

Fences must be constructed of a permanent weatherproof material such as wood, vinyl or masonry. Fabric, plastic sheeting or metal (unless specially designed and created as a fence) is not permitted.

Please let me know if you need anything further.
